Admission of the Provisional Government of Kabylia to the OEAS

Washington DC:

The Organization of Emerging African States is pleased to announce the admission of the Provisional Government of Kabylia as a full member. The OEAS is an association of 12 emerging African governments united in seeking peaceful political and economic self determination. Kabylia is located in northern Algeria with an area of over 25,000 km².

The Provisional Government of Kabylia is seeking non violent self determination for the ten million plus residents of Kabylia and an end to forced Arabization policies of the current Algerian government. Kabylia has a long history of autonomy and its mountain strongholds were never fully subdued by the Romans, Arabs, or Turks. They also offered fierce resistance to the French colonialists in the 19th century.

The current president of the Provisional Government is Ferhat Mehenni. He is also the leader of the Paris-based Mouvement pour l'autonomie de la Kabylie (MAK). In 2010, Mr. Ferhat Mahenni declared the founding of the provisional government which has attracted support worldwide.
